Project Title: Lana Del Rey: The Eras

1. Project overview

A website that tells Lana Del Rey's story one album era at a time, from her early years through her breakthrough, every album since, and her work outside of music.

2. Resources

Copy comes from https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Lana_Del_Rey, organized by my content outline. Photos will come from Wikimedia Commons, and all images will be credited on the Sources page.

3. Goals

- Make the album timeline the main feature of the site.
- Keep facts short and scannable, with key dates pulled out.
- Work on phones, tablets, and desktops, with readable contrast and alt text.

4. Audience

Music fans of any level, plus my instructors, classmates, and prospective employers since it will be in my portfolio. No music knowledge needed.

5. Message

Each album is its own chapter, her vintage Americana image is a deliberate artistic choice, and she's become one of the defining songwriters of her generation.

6. Tone

Dreamy, nostalgic, and a little melancholy, like an old photo album. Elegant and slow-paced, with clear, plain writing.

7. Site structure

Seven pages: Home, Before Lana, The Breakthrough, The Albums, Sound and Style, Beyond the Albums, and Sources. Top nav on desktop, collapsing into a menu on mobile. The Albums page is a vertical timeline with a block for each era showing the cover, year, and key songs.

8. Visual style

Old Hollywood meets a faded California postcard, with lots of open space and full-width photos that feel like movie stills.

Typography: an elegant serif for headings, like Playfair Display, and a clean sans-serif for body text, like Karla. Album and song titles in italics.

Photography: warm, soft concert and event photos, with album covers anchoring each era.

Color: Ivory Cream (#F8F8EC) background, Java Brown (#231815) text, and Wild Berry (#330511) and Sceptre Red (#4D0E12) for headings and dark sections. The blues and neutrals are for cards and timeline eras, kept as backgrounds only.
